DESCRIPTION:

Originally produced by Jannamico family in Villa Santa Maria - a mountain village in Abruzzo which is home to several famous chefs de cuisine - this traditional liqueur can be served in a thousand ways. At room temperature it is an excellent aperitif or goes with dessert; on the rocks; it becomes deliciously refreshing. It is perfect as a hot drink in the winter.

TASTING NOTES:

"Owns a pleasing aroma of licorice and bark. Palate entry is surprisingly sweet and syrupy; by midpalate there's all sorts of flavors bouncing in my mouth, including root beer, maple, dark caramel, ginger, road tar, tobacco leaf and orris root. Aftertaste is long, fat and chewy."
